MERCHANT FOUND DYING IN SNOW

Former Adams County Merchant Found Dying in Snow Bank Near Charmian. Faithful Dog Keeps Watch over his Body.

Almost buried by the snow and guarded by his faithful dog, Daniel B. Martin, Charmian, formerly a merchant at Fountindale and Charmian, was found in a dying condition near Buena Vista Station, Wednesday afternoon. The aged man died, soon afterward, in the Buena Vista postoffice, to which his body was removed.

Martin left home, Tuesday noon, stating that he was going to take a short walk. His family heard nothing more of him until Wednesday when he was found.

He spent the afternoon near Lake Royer and started home in the evening. It is believed that he lost his way and in the fury of the snow storm which swept over that section, early Wednesday morning, wandered aimlessly about in the mountain until he became so weak and fatigued that he could battle with the elements no longer. He fell upon the ground and was soon overcome by the cold.

He was found, lying face downward, Wednesday afternoon, by Norman L. Harbaugh, who was walking up the path toward the store. Harbaugh asked him what he was doing. Waiting awhile for an answer and receiving none he again inquired what he was doing. A slight quiver from the semi-conscious man's lips was the only response.

Looking about for some assistance, Harbaugh noticed Stanley Wise and C. W. Smith walking down the path toward them. The three men placed Martin upon his sled, which was nearby, and when they reached the post-office there was still a trace of life. Dr. Charles Beck, Highfield, was immediately summoned but before he arrived the man had died, without regaining consciousness.

Justice Ankeney, acting coroner, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Long, went to the scene in an automobile. After viewing the body, Justice Ankeney deemed an inquest unnecessary.

Remaining close by the body of his dead master to the very end, his little dog whined piteously when removed from his side. All through the night and up to the time Mr. Martin's body was found, the dog stood on watch, while the snow fell, for almost a dozen hours and the cold grew more severe.

Mr. Martin was 67 years old, and for a number of years was engaged in the mercantile business in Fountindale and Charmian.

He is survived by his widow and the following children: Howard, Charles S., Carl F., C. S., and Hazel M., all at home, and one sister, Mrs. Daniel Fry, Fountindale.

LIFE TERM FOR WARREN SANDERS

Field Boy Admits Guilt in Murder Case and is Given Life Imprisonment in Joliet, Illinois, Penitentiary.

Warren Sanders, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Sanders, of Fairfield, was sentenced at Dixon, Illinois, this week to life imprisonment in the penitentiary at Joliet, for the self confessed murder of his wife and mother-in-law at Ashton, on Sunday morning, August 18, 1912. The man has visited at his home in Fairfield but never lived in this county, having been born while his parents were living in the West and remaining there after they came to this section. In imposing sentence Judge Farrand reviewed the evidence in the case, the principal points of which were the following.

Sanders was twenty years of age when he married Westanna Griffith, at that time fifteen years old. Soon the young couple went to live upon a farm owned or controlled by George Griffith, the father of the child wife. Some misunderstanding came and they left the farm, Sanders being employed sometimes at farm work and then at railroading. A daughter was born. Sanders was much from home. He had twice started in business for himself in a small way, and failed. If he had desired, it was difficult for him to have furnished his wife and child with the comforts or even the necessities of life. She spent much of her time at the home of her parents; she became dissatisfied and restless under the conditions surrounding her.

Another man appeared and succeeded in winning affections of the wife. With him she went to California and lived for several weeks. That the girl's mother approved of the trip was brought out at the hearing. Later Sanders forgave his wife and lived with her for a time but she again became untrue to her marital vows, this time with another man.

The husband and wife were separated and their daughter, now seven years old, was left in the care of the mother with the decree of the Court that the father should have her Saturday afternoons and Sundays.

On August 17th Sanders learned that his wife was coming from Chicago and that she would reach there on a train about 1:30 o'clock on the morning of August 18th. He secured a revolver evidently intending to kill his wife. According to the statement of Judge Farrand he could not at that time have entertained any intention of killing the mother-in-law, Mrs. Griffith at the depot. The Court continued.

"There is not a word of testimony in the case warranting the conclusion that he had any knowledge that Mrs. Griffith would be at the train to meet his wife.

"Upon his arrival there he found Mrs. Griffith and his little girl of seven in company with two young ladies. By decree of court he was given the right to have the custody of his daughter Naomi on that day. One of the ladies present testified that they could not make him believe that they did not intend to take Naomi away. When the defendant was working at August Reinhart's some member of the Griffith family had clandestinely taken the child and kept her separated from him for several weeks.

"The defendant testified that his wife and Mrs. Griffith struck and choked him and gouged his eyes. Ira W. Lewis, jailer, stated that on the next day he examined the defendant and found small cut on the side of his nose near the eye, and quite a severe bruise on the top of his head. All this trouble was occasioned over the possession of Naomi. Then the defendant drew the revolver and committed the awful crime, the taking of two lives, and sent two souls into eternity."

The charge on which Sanders pleaded guilty was the murder of the mother-in-law and in view of his confession and his state of nervous excitement following the incidents which lead up to the crime he was saved from a death sentence, and given life imprisonment instead.

ANOTHER ROAD TO WASHINGTON

Pennsylvania, Maryland and Congress to Bear Expenses of Highway from Gettysburg to Washington. Plan is Generally Favored.

With the final and complete defeat of the Lincoln Way idea now a matter of history, the plan of State Highway Commissioner Bigelow for a macadam road from Gettysburg to Washington has again come to light and is receiving attention.

At the time of a visit of Mr. Bigelow to Gettysburg a year or more ago he outlined his plan for a fine highway between the National Capital and this place and he felt sure of the necessary co-operation to put through the plan.

"My idea," he said, "is that Pennsylvania should build one of her modern macadam roads from Gettysburg to the Maryland line; that the state of Maryland should build a similar road to the District of Columbia, and I feel sure that Congress would quickly authorize the construction of the balance of the way."

Mr. Bigelow's idea looks all the more possible now since the sentiment for a road from Gettysburg to Washington was so vigorously expressed in Congress during the past few weeks and it is believed that the victorious side in the Lincoln Memorial plan, will be ready to show a friendly spirit to the vanquished highway advocates and support the District end of the road proposition.

That Maryland will agree to such a plan was intimated by Mr. Bigelow in his interview, some assurance having been received that such assistance would be given. Maryland's Congressmen were heartily in favor of the Lincoln Way idea and political forces generally in that state are said to be almost a unit for a fine road running through their state with Washington and Gettysburg as the termini.

Though not so pretentious as the Lincoln Way the road proposed by Mr. Bigelow would be of immense value to Gettysburg and the country through which it would run and would connect, almost as satisfactorily as an elaborate memorial way, the nation's capital and her greatest battlefield.

The interior of the residence is being heated by a steam system located in the cellar of the garage.

The macadamized road through the large terrace which is in the shape of a "W," was finished during the summer. Flower beds have been planted at various places in the large grounds surrounding the home and along the driveways. AFTER FIVE YEARS Winthrop Child Was Restored to Health By Vinol.

"Five years ago our little girl had a severe attack of diphtheria which left her subject to bronchitis and stomach trouble. She has been almost constantly under medical treatment. I have also tried two or three remedies containing cod liver oil but found her stomach rebelled against the oil. Reading your description of Vinol I decided to try it and did so with most astonishing results. I cannot begin to tell you how she has improved because you do not know what a little sufferer she was for five years. She has gained ten pounds since she commenced to take Vinol, and the story of what Vinol has done for her is only half told in this letter." Mrs. Adelaide Mulloy, Winthrop, Mass.

Vinol contains all the healing curative properties of cod liver oil, without the oil and tonic iron added. That is why it helped this little girl after other remedies had failed.

We ask mothers of weak, sickly children to try Vinol on our offer to give back your money if it fails to help them. The People's Drug Store, P. S. Our Saxo Salve is truly wonderful for Eczema. We guarantee it.

THE RECALL OF PRESIDENT LOSES

Proposal is Voted Down in Senate, 58 to 10.

ONE TERM BILL DEBATED

Flood of Amendments Presented When the Measure is Taken Up and Debate is Lively.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Presidential terms ranging all the way from two to six years, prohibitions against second terms and third terms; exemptions that would affect Roosevelt, Taft and Wilson, and proposals for the recall and the direct popular election of presidents were thrust into the senate in rapid succession during the consideration of the constitutional amendment limiting a president to a single term of six years.

In a session filled with lively debate, Senator Bristow's proposal that a president could be recalled at any regular election was voted down, 58 to 10, and Senator Hoke Smith's amendment to make the single term four years instead of six, was defeated, 42 to 25. More than a dozen amendments were pending when the senate recessed.

Senators Dixon and Poindeexter, Progressives; Bristow, Progressive-Republican, and Lodge, Republican, led the fight against a restriction of the presidential term. Senator Williams, Democrat, proposed a four-year term, with the privilege of reelection once, but his amendment was so drawn as to prevent Colonel Roosevelt from seeking another election.

The defeat of the Bristow amendment for recall of the president followed a short debate, in which Senator Bristow urged that to make the federal administration properly responsive to public demand, the people should have the right to change the president when they change congress. The vote on the recall amendment mustered ten votes only in its favor, the following senators voting for it:

Ashurst, Bristow, Clapp, Dixon, Gronna and Poindeexter, Progressives, and Republicans; Martine, Owens, Peck and Thomas, Democrats.

The candidates of Roosevelt, Wilson, Bryan and Taft figured in the fight. Senator Borah said that President Taft had not used the power of his office for his own re-election in 1912 to any greater extent than President Roosevelt had used it in 1908 for the election of President Taft. Mr. Bristow said:

"President Roosevelt wanted Mr. Taft nominated because he believed Taft would carry out the principles to which the Roosevelt administration was devoted. A president who would use every effort to perpetuate his policies would not be worth his salt."

Senator Hitchcock asked if it was not generally believed that Roosevelt favored President Taft's nomination in 1912 so that he himself might be a candidate in 1912. Senator Borah retorted: "I know the senator himself does not entertain such a thought, so I feel free to say that such an idea is the product of a diseased mind."

Senator Dixon's charge that a single six-year term was desired chiefly by ambitious aspirants for the presidency, and the declaration of Senators Bristow and Poindeexter that this proposed limitation would be destructive of American principles of government, made up the burden of the Progressive fight against the resolution.

Senator Bristow declared the people should be free to choose their own president and to re-elect a president when they believed it wise. He declared the constitution should include a recall provision, so that when congress is overthrown because an administration is not satisfactory the people could also recall the president and establish a new administration throughout.

OFFICIAL NATIONAL ANTHEM

Washington, Jan. 31.—A joint resolution to make "The Star Spangled Banner" the official anthem of the United States was introduced by Representative Levy, of New York. It also provides:

"That whenever 'The Star Spangled Banner' is played on any occasion at any public place where persons be longing to any branch of the government service are present, they will stand at attention, and all other persons will stand, such positions being retained until the last note of the anthem."

TRUCE ENDS AS TURKS CONCEDE MORE

Alias Say Four Days' Grace Has Begun.

Constantinople, Jan. 31.—The Balkan allies gave notice of the termination of the armistice, the period of grace of four days starting at seven o'clock last evening.

The armistice, which has been in operation since Dec. 3, was signed on that day by Bulgaria, Serbia and Montenegro on the one side and Turkey on the other. Greece never was a party to the cessation of hostilities. She has continued fighting, both on land and sea.

The Montenegrins also have come into conflict with the garrison of Scutari on several occasions, notwithstanding the truce.

In its reply to the joint note of the powers the Young Turk government asserts itself boldly. Apart from proposals to divide Adrianople and a plea for the retention of the Aegean islands, the new government takes advantage of the occasion to press for relief from the fetters of tariff and "foreigners' extra-territorial rights," under which the Turks long have chafed. The note says:

"The Ottoman government does not hesitate to recognize that the conclusion of peace corresponds with the hopes and interest of all, and that it is desirable to put an end as soon as possible to a struggle which it in no way provoked."

"The imperial government has already given undeniable proof of a conciliatory spirit by consenting to immediate sacrifices. Adrianople being an essentially Mussulman town and the second capital in Turkey, and therefore indisputably bound up with the empire, the mere rumor of its cession provoked a sentiment of repudiation throughout the country and aroused such excitement as to bring about the resignation of the last cabinet."

"The Turkish government is willing, as a final proof of its pacific disposition, to place itself in the hands of the powers regarding that part of Adrianople situated on the right bank of the Maritza river. The mosques and historic monuments are on the left bank, and the retention of that section is a necessity which the government cannot fail to take account of without exposing the country to a commotion which might result in the gravest consequences."

LEAPS FROM BURNING CAR

Messenger Has to Choose Between Burning and Jump From Fast Train.

Stamford, Conn., Jan. 31.—Several thousand dollars' worth of damage was done by a fire in a car of the east-bound Adams Express train near this city.

The cargo was valued at about $50,000. A number of valuable packages were destroyed and many others damaged. A collie dog, valued at $400, was burned to death.

Robert Wright, of East Norwalk, the express messenger, jumped when, because of failure of the mechanism, he could not send in a stop signal.

Women to Spare Birds.

New York, Jan. 31.—Pledges never again to wear the much prized plumage of either the bird of paradise or the egret are being signed by many women prominent in society here. Mrs. H. Fairbairn Osborn, wife of the president of the American Museum of Natural History, started the pledge taking.

Initiative Is Defeated.

BRYAN DENIES LATEST RUMOR

Says He Didn't Announce Acceptance of Cabinet Post.

AUTHORIZED NO ONE TO SPEAK

Declares No Attention Should Be Paid to Reports Unless They Come From Mr. Wilson or Himself.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 31.—Declaring that Henry E. Alexander, of Trenton, N. J., did not call upon him on political business, William J. Bryan replied to reports sent out from Miami to the effect that Mr. Bryan had given assurances that he would accept the portfolio of secretary of state in the Wilson cabinet. Mr. Bryan dictated the following:

"No attention whatever should be paid to such reports as sent out from Miami. No friend would presume to speak for me in such a matter, and no man who would assume to speak for me can be considered my friend."

"I take it for granted that President-elect Wilson will give out anything he wants published, and I will give out anything I want published. Neither of us should be held responsible for what anybody says."

"Speaking for myself, I do not care to discuss unauthorized reports. Mr. Alexander did not call upon political business, and our conversation was about an entirely different matter."

Conference between Bryan and other prominent Democratic leaders, including Alexander, resulted in the announcement by the Miami Herald that Mr. Bryan had given a positive assurance that he would accept the portfolio of secretary of state in the Wilson cabinet.

Wilson Admits Bryan Is Slated.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 31.—That the name of William Jennings Bryan is the only one that has fixed itself in his mind as a candidate for secretary of state was admitted by President-elect Wilson.

"Has anybody been suggested for secretary of state besides Mr. Bryan?" the governor was asked.

"Oh, yes," he answered. "I cannot repeat the list, but there have been at least half a dozen."

The president-elect denied that Colonel E. M. House bore any message from him to Mr. Bryan. Colonel House is now in Florida and is staying at Miami, where Mr. Bryan has a ranch.

Accused Interest in Washington.

Washington, Jan. 31.—The report from Miami, Fla., concerning William J. Bryan's place in the Wilson cabinet, aroused widespread interest and comment here.

There was some misgiving at the outset as to accepting the report, but the prevailing view was that the report was in line with what had been expected.

Some of the leaders in the confidence of the president-elect and Mr. Bryan asserted their belief in the accuracy of the statement that Mr. Bryan had agreed to accept the portfolio. It was said Bryan had confided to prominent Democratic senators some time ago that he had been offered the position and had determined to accept it, but none of the leaders was willing to permit the use of his name in connection with it.

WILSON TO BEGIN ADDRESS

Soon to Start Inaugural Message and Decides to Wear Silk Hat.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 31.—President-elect Wilson expects to begin work on his inaugural address in a few days.

When asked whether he had made any further plans for his inauguration, he replied, with a smile, that he had decided to wear a silk hat when reviewing the inaugural parade.

"I suppose I'll have to concede that much to custom," he said. The only time he ever felt uncomfortable as governor of New Jersey, he said, was the day he wore a silk hat and sat on a horse reviewing the troops at Sen Girt a year ago. He has worn a felt hat on every occasion since then.

RAILROAD MEN RE-INDICTED

Heads of New Haven and Grand Trunk Systems Accused Again.

New York, Jan. 31.—Charles S. Melan, president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad company; E. J. Chamberlin and Alfred W. Smithers, president and chairman, respectively, of the Grand Trunk railroad, of Canada, were re-indicted by the federal grand jury for violation of the Sherman anti-trust law in an alleged monopolistic agreement between the New Haven and Grand Trunk roads.

The indictments superceded those returned several weeks ago and attacked by the defense.

Lords Reject Home Rule.

London, Jan. 31.—As was generally expected, the house of lords rejected the home rule bill by a vote of 325 to 67. Mr. Gladstone's home rule measure in 1893 was beaten by the lords by a vote of 419 to 41.

The Scrap Book

A Second Shock.

Lord Saye and Sele is the present head of one of the very old families in England, a family, by the way, noted for its dignity and exclusiveness.

The story goes that it was a member of this family who once staggered her relatives at dinner one evening.

"Mother," she remarked casually, "I was married today."

Her mother, who would have regarded any display of emotion as an everlasting disgrace, controlled herself by a tremendous effort.

"My dear," she said coldly, "you might at least have waited till James had left the room."

James was the footman waiting at table.

"But it's James I've married," the young lady explained.

The Real Treasure.

The real treasure is that laid up by man or woman.

Through charity and piety, temperance and self control.

The treasure thus hid is secure and passes not away.

Though he leave the fleeting riches of this world, this a man takes with him, A treasure that no wrong of others and no thief can steal.

Let the wise man make good deeds. The treasure follows of itself.

—Nidhikanda Sutta.

A Crazy Wit.

While a wedding breakfast was being held in a restaurant in a seaport town in France a naval officer in uniform entered the room and was invited to preside over the feast. He made himself very agreeable, sang songs and delivered speeches. He was proposing the bride's health when two policemen rushed in and arrested him as an escaped lunatic from a neighboring asylum. The prisoner took his arrest calmly and smilingly. He bowed politely to the officers and said:

"I think you have made a mistake, gentlemen. There's pointing to the bridegroom—'is the man you want.'"

Two Dollars to the Good.

An advance agent was ahead of a small one night stand show. The theater, in a town of 4,000, was called the Jones Opera House, but the agent, thinking it had no name, had his "dates" printed "Grand Opera House." The "dates" are the sheets that go on the billboards and show what night the performance will be given. When the manager of the opera house saw the dates he was provoked.

"You've got to git 'em changed to 'Jones Opry House,'" he said. "Jones, that's my name. It's named after me."

He insisted. So the agent went to a local newspaper office to see what he could have the dates struck off for. He found it would cost $8. That was too much. He went back and told the opera house manager. The latter thought it over awhile.

"Waal," he finally said, "that is a lot to pay. I'll tell you what to do. You gimme $3 an' I'll git a painter to change the name of the opry house to the 'Grand.' The painter will do it for a dollar, an' I'll have $2 for losin' the honor of havin' the house named for me."

The agent handed over the money.—Indianapolis News.

Undecided.

One day a professor of mathematics at a certain university prepared to set out on a short journey on horseback. He was an absentminded person and while saddling the animal was thinking out some intricate problem. Some students stood near and watched him abstractedly place the saddle on hind side before.

"Oh, professor," exclaimed one of the group, "you are putting the wrong end of your saddle foremost."

"Young man," replied the professor, with some tartness, "you are entirely too smart. How do you know it is wrong when I have not yet told you in which direction I intend to go?"—Lippincott's.

ORDERS CASTRO TO BE DEPORTED

Former Dictator of Venezuela Cannot Remain Here.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Secretary Nagel ordered the deportation of Cipriano Castro, former president of Venezuela, from the United States under the immigration laws.

The main grounds for this action, according to a statement issued by the secretary, is that, if Castro is given a hearing and is permitted to refuse to answer questions, any alien refusing to answer questions may also demand a hearing.

Secretary Nagel based his decision on the ground that General Castro de liberately refused to answer pertinent questions put to him by the special board at Ellis Island in connection with the killing of General Parades.

This killing, it was alleged, was without trial or hearing of any kind, and Castro as president, was directly responsible for it.

Secretary Nagel reviews the law in the case, and says that it brings forward strongly whether an alien seeking admission to this country can be permitted to refuse to answer a question based upon apparently authentic information and directed to a district ground for exclusion under the law.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 31.—The fourth successive advance in crude oil was recorded in this city when the South Penn Oil company announced its price at the opening of business.

Eleven days afterward the price was advanced five cents, and within a month producers were receiving $1.50 a barrel for oil.

Advances continued at regular intervals, and $3 a barrel is predicted by the end of the year.

LABOR PARTY AIDS SUFFRAGETTES

Trades Unions in England Favor Votes For Women.

ASQUITH ASSAILED AGAIN

Women Shriek "Traitor!" When He Tries to Speak—Pour Tar and Acid in Letter Boxes.

London, Jan. 31.—The British labor party officially declared itself in favor of woman suffrage.

By a vote of 850 to 437 a conference of the representatives in London of most of the trades unions of the United Kingdom adopted a resolution instructing labor members of parliament to oppose any franchise bill in which women were not included.

The significance to the woman suffrage movement is very great. The trades unions have between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 members, nearly all of whom are electors, and their attitude would carry enormous weight in case woman suffrage were made a plank in the program of any party at a general election.

Well organized bands of suffragettes of Dundee, Scotland, raised pandemonium during the ceremony of conferring the freedom of the city of Dundee on Premier Asquith. The premier had hardly risen to acknowledge the honor when shrieks of "Traitor! Traitor!" resounded through the hall.

Stewards and policemen were soon busily occupied in throwing the women out of the building. Howls of "You brutes! You brutes!" and sharp scurrilous remarks marked the passage through the hall of each group. One woman sprang over the front of the gallery and was only saved from falling among the crowded audience twenty feet below by the fact that several men seized her by the skirts and held her suspended.

One of the boldest suffragettes ever arrested by the police was taken into custody after she had attacked the residence of the Archbishop of Canterbury, head of the Anglican church, and smashed several windows.

She admitted that she had planned to attack Buckingham Palace and, if possible, get a personal interview with King George. Her confession resulted in orders being issued to allow no women within the grounds of Buckingham palace, save those known to be anti-suffragists.

The suffragists continued their militant tactics with a further outbreak of window smashing. The buildings attacked included the colonial office and the offices of the Hamburg-American steamship line, which had already suffered. At the latter building a window valued at $750 was smashed by a woman with a hammer.

In some of the more prominent shopping thoroughfares in the West End conditions had some semblance to those during a siege. Many extra policemen patrolled the pavements, and a number of shopkeepers had reinforced their guard by stationing porters and other employees before their plate glass window panes. In some cases, indeed, rows of men had been stretched across the whole facades of buildings.

From different parts of the country further pillar-box attacks are reported, and in London 200 postal packets were destroyed by tar poured into a pillar-box in the West End.

At one postoffice a packet addressed to Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd George burst into flames when it was opened, owing, it is thought, to the action of sulphuric acid. The flames were extinguished before any one was injured.

This is the latest form of outrage invented by the suffragettes. While the sorting staff at the Croydon postoffice was at work several packets burst into flames and gave off thick fumes.

When a postman cleared a letter box in York a letter took fire. It contained two glass tubes filled with liquid, that ignited on exposure to the air. Similar outrages were committed at other pillar boxes. The letters containing the tubes were all addressed to Premier Asquith.

CAUSE OF GIRLS' DOWNFALL

Poor Wages in New York Stores Is Blamed by Woman.

New York, Jan. 31.—Poor wages in the shops are responsible for many young women of New York starting on a downward career, according to Mrs. Frederick Nathan, president of the Consumers' league, speaking at the annual meeting of the organization.

Figures compiled by the league and made public by Mrs. Nathan show that 60 per cent of the saleswomen over sixteen years of age in New York stores receive less than $6.50 a week and 33 per cent receive between $6 and $6.50.

"We believe that $9 a week is the lowest living wage for self-supporting girls to live on in our city," declared the speaker.

MAY DELAY CANAL OPENING

More Landslides in Culebra Cut Reported to Commission.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Further movements of the slides in the banks of the Culebra cut, Panama canal, was reported to the isthmian canal commission here.

Material to the amount of 1,000,000 cubic yards has been or will be thrown into the cut as a result of this latest activity of the slides.

Between 300,000 and 400,000 cubic yards of earth moved into the cut at Curachaca, covering five railroad tracks in the cut at that point, leaving only one of the tracks open.

Another slide occurred just south of Gold Hill, and it is expected that 500,000 cubic yards of earth and rock will have been precipitated into the cut before the slide is completed. The latest slide at Curachaca has also weakened the bank at Purple Hill, and it is expected that there will be further sliding at that point in the near future.

BECKER'S MOTHER THINKS HE IS ILL

Condemned Man Writes Her a Letter Every Day.

New York, Jan. 31.—Mrs. Anna Becker, ninety years old, living in a Long Island town, receives every morning a letter from her son, in which he tells her that he is getting better and that he expects to see her just as soon as his health is fully restored.

The missive which the old mother gets comes from former Police Lieutenant Charles Becker, who is in the death house at Sing Sing, hoping that the court of appeals will reverse his conviction for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler.

The aged woman hasn't seen a paper for a good many years. It is hard for her to make out the characters, so there is always some one good enough to read all the parts that might interest her. In this way the news that her favorite son has been convicted and is under sentence of death has been kept from her. She thinks he is in a hospital, and all the letters are written upon the stationery of a hospital.

According to the same reports, Mrs. Becker, wife of the prisoner, is having to play a most difficult role in this merciful play. The older woman is always preparing some delicacy for her boy, and she writes him a letter every afternoon.

The two other bank presidents sentenced were David A. Sullivan, of the Mechanics' and Traders', convicted of the larceny of $20,000, and Broc R. Shears, of the Borough bank, found guilty of misappropriating $2000.

Queer Custom.

An Englishman went to Paris, where he stayed for some time. When he returned to his home a friend asked him how he had liked France.

"A beastly country," he replied, "perfectly beastly. They know nothing there. They don't even know how to talk. Why, they call bread 'pain'."

"But," his friend said, "that is the French word for bread."

"Oh, I know that! But why should they call it that? It really is bread, you know."—Everybody's.

A Mutiny

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

On my last voyage with Captain Waterman we had bad luck with the crew. Two men were lost overboard in a storm, three died of sickness, and five deserted at Madeira. We went through the strait of Gibraltar with eight men and when we reached Naples were reduced to six, for we had scarcely cast anchor when two more men left us for parts unknown.

We lay in Naples a week, taking on a cargo of olive oil, figs and Italian fruits. Several days before sailing on the return voyage the captain was requested to take some money to New York. It wasn't much, but quite enough to excite the cupidity of a common sailor. Waterman was so proud of being entrusted with the amount—about $12,000—that he had to tell one of the men about it. The worst of it was that we were obliged to make up the crew at Naples in order to take the ship back to New York, and any one who has ever been in Naples will understand what kind of men we were obliged to accept. Some of them were a weakened, degraded lot, while the rest looked as if they had seen service as brigands. The fact is that before we got through with them I made up my mind that they had spent the greater part of their lives behind bars.

When we sailed away from Naples I confess I had misgivings about ever getting across the Atlantic with such a crew. The second mate, Hanford, felt a good deal as I did about it, but the captain didn't seem to feel the least uneasy. Before making due westward we went down to Messina to take on oranges. The evening of our arrival I noticed by the looks of the men and certain hurried consultations that took place among small groups of them that something was brewing. Instead of going to my berth when I came off watch and feeling uneasy, when no one saw me I slipped into one of the ship's boats. I hadn't been there very long before there was a commotion beneath me. I heard shots down between decks, and several of the crew poured up the companionway, and the whole lot of them talked hurriedly directly beneath the boat I was in. I knew by what was said that they had killed the captain and the second mate and had been disappointed in not finding me in my berth. What had become of me was their chief topic of conversation, and it seemed to trouble them very much.

Some one said that he had seen a man leap overboard, and this seemed to satisfy them that I had thus escaped, but they didn't propose to take any chances, and their leader, dividing the ship into sections, detailed two men to search each section. Certain of being captured if I remained where I was, when no one was near me I let myself down into the water and, swimming to the rudder, climbed up on it. Not being a first class swimmer, I didn't dare to try to get to the shore, which was fully a mile distant.

It wasn't long before I heard the anchor being drawn up, and I felt sure that the men were going to put out somewhere and I would stand a good chance of being drowned perchance where I was. However, I couldn't help myself and must take my chances of meeting death that way rather than giving myself up to be murdered. They sailed northeastward and in a few hours came near land, which was a part of the toe of the boot of Italy as it appears on the map. They coasted along till they came to a very thin, settled region from which mountains rose from a beach. There they ran the ship ashore. Taking two of the boats, they landed, and, turning the boats adrift, they began to walk northward on the beach.

I was now relieved of my fear and turned my whole energies toward following them up and turning them over to the authorities for punishment. Swimming forward to the bowsprit chains, I climbed up on deck, lowered a boat and when the men were passing around a spur in the mountain pulled away from the ship. When I came in sight of them again I was to them simply a man in a boat, for they were too far away to see who I was and, in order to lull any suspicious they might have, I pretended to be fishing.

After proceeding northward for a couple of hours, coming to a gap, they turned eastward. I pulled ashore and leaving my boat took the only road they could have followed. They stopped at a small town, and I halted on side. When they left the place I entered it, and, finding telegraph facilities, I sent a message to the nearest point where I would be likely to find a police force sufficient to handle them and sent an account of the situation, with the direction the men were moving.

I was requested to keep track of them if possible and post the police from time to time of any change in their route.

About 5 o'clock in the afternoon I met the police detachment and guided them to a point where I knew the men were journeying. We let them proceed to a sort of pocket, where we called on them to surrender. They were only partly armed, and the police besides outnumbering them, all had rifles. This brought them to terms, and we captured them, including the $12,000 they had with them.

They were taken to Naples, where they were tried. Some of them had been compelled to join the mutiny, and they were let off. The ringleaders were given solitary confinement for life, while the rest got light sentences.

LESSONS 49 CENTS

Alleged that Fake Magazine Scheme was Worked.

It is stated that several strangers have been covering Hanover during the week, soliciting subscriptions to a combination of three magazines at the introductory rate of 49 cents for the three. They secured, it is said, about 500 subscriptions. It is alleged that the scheme is a fraud and that the subscribers will wait for their magazines in vain. If this is true it is only another natural result of placing confidence in strangers, who offer alluring bargains.
